01 Positioning

What the app is, who it's for, and the one idea everything else is built around.

ELEVATOR PITCH

Ch'rps turns the shift checklist into an honest record. Fridge and freezer temps, restroom checks, cash counts, opening and closing tasks — logged as they happen, not reconstructed at the end of a shift. Two honest ways to skip a task. Missed it or? Best keep the record true without punishing real life. Built for task, missed it or rest, keep the record true without punishing real life. Built for restaurants first, and built to work the same way for any team that runs a shift — gyms, hotels, anyone whose day isn't done until the checklist is.

FEATURE VOCABULARY

Shift Task Lists

Opening, Mid-Shift, Closing, plus any custom list a manager builds. Time-aware — a list expands when its shift starts and collapses once the window has passed.

Honest Skip States

Missed it breaks the streak. Rest protects it. Every skip gets recorded — and recorded honestly.

Streaks & Analytics

Seven-day streak dots per task, plus completion and time-variance analytics — see a task running long before it's a problem.

Guided Sessions

A walkthrough mode that moves staff through a list task by task, with a live projected-finish time.

NFC Tap-to-Trigger

Bind a physical tag to a task. Tap to open it, or scan it in-app to complete it — no unlocking a phone to hunt for the app.

Multi-Tenant by Design

Every restaurant, gym, or hotel is its own company — its own users, lists, tasks, and history.

02 Logo & Mark

A bird mid-call — the wordmark's apostrophe doubling as the sound. Two approved forms: the full lockup, and the mark alone for small or square spaces.

FULL LOCKUP — PRIMARY USAGE

MARK ONLY — FAVICON, APP ICON, SMALL SPACE

USAGE RULES

- DO Place on white or very light, low-texture backgrounds — that's the only context the mark has been proofed against.
- DO Give the mark clearspace equal to the height of the bird's body on all sides before any other element.
- DO Use the mark alone once it's rendering under ~120px wide — the wordmark stops being legible before the bird does.
- DON'T Recolor the mark. Blue body, green wing and tail, white belly — that relationship is the mark.
- DON'T Stretch, skew, rotate, or add a drop shadow. It flies level.
- DON'T Set it on a busy photo or a saturated color field without a light card behind it.

03

Color

One accent, one confirmation color, and a quiet neutral scale. Everything else in the product is functional status color — useful vocabulary if the site shows product screens, but not brand accents to design with. Values below are pulled from `tailwind.config.ts`, the shipped source — not the brand-doc hex, which runs slightly brighter.

Blue and green are the only colors that should ever feel like "the brand." Red and amber exist strictly to report a status the product observed — never use them decoratively.

04 Typography

Four faces, four jobs. A rounded sans for the name itself, a serif for section headings, a grotesque for reading, a mono for anything measured.

WORDMARK

Ch'rps

The name itself, wherever it's set as a logotype rather than run in body copy — currently the login screen only. Not used for section headings elsewhere in the app; that's Playfair Display, below.

Inter · 400–600

BODY & UI

Fridge and freezer temps, restroom checks, cash counts, opening and closing tasks — all done consistently, and left as an honest record. The job isn't done until the checklist is.

Plain, procedural, and quietly confident. It sounds like the checklist itself, not an app trying to sell you one.

product thesis

tone rules

- DO

Name tasks the way staff actually say them — "Walk-in Fridge Temp," not "Refrigeration Compliance Check."
- DO

Write short, declarative sentences. A control says exactly what it does.
- DO

Let honesty be the selling point — "Missed" and "Rest" are both fine outcomes to show on a marketing page.
- DON'T

Reach for hype words — "revolutionary," "game-changing," "seamless." One accent color, one register.

DON'T Use exclamation points. Confidence doesn't need volume.

06 Shape & Spacing

The product's corner radii and state colors — vocabulary worth carrying over if the site shows real screens or UI-styled components.
